AN INTERESTING SCENE AT THE OFFICE IN CANAL-ST. YESTERDAY.

"I've got the shakes: I got 'em when I w the war, and I've had 'em ever since," said a worthy veteran at the pension office in Canal-st. yesterday. "But I can sign my name to the pension-roll all the same," he continued. "Yes, and I've got one leg and I can sign my name, too," sarcastically said another pensioner.

These relics of the war with hundreds of others of their kind were receiving quarterly payments of their pensions from the industrious clerks of Colonel Frank C. Loveland, the United States pension agent of this district. They had come from far and wide and many of them had arrived the day before and had passed the night in the mission room in the base ment of the pension building. Here sandwiches and coffee had been given to them and then when they had finished their evening luncheon they were en conraged to sing the songs that took them back to "Marching Through Georgia." They becam filled with the spirit of song that finally the people in charge of the mission had them all singing Moody and Sankey hymns. This was kept up most of the night and when merning dawned more sandsiches and coffee were given to them, and then one and all they made a rush for the office above where the clerks were bustly making ready the honestly deserved checks of the vast army of patriots. was 1 o'clock yesterday morning when Colonel Frank first quarterly payments of the year. Between that hour and 12 o'clock last night more than 6,000 veterans were paid, and it was calculated that $150,000 was disbursed.

It was a curious sight to see this multitude of men from all parts of the city and the neighboring countie pension building and the street outside for many blocks, all anxious to receive their money. There were one-armed men and one-legged men and men with no legs at all. There were gray-haired veterans, bearing the marks of many battles, and now and then the woolly head of a faithful darkey who had served for Uncle sam would be seen in the crowd. Women too were there. Wives of men hilled in the war were waiting for their checks. Prominent among them all were representatives of neighboring bar-rooms, who were seeking to tempt the pensioners to spend their money in the dram shops. There were law will not hurt them particularly. them all were representatives of neighboring barfew, however, who accepted the invitation of the liquor sharks, for the veterans have learned by sad ex perience the result of visits to these houses. The pension office in this city is the largest agency in the country. It has under its jurisdiction most of New-York State and parts of New-Jersey and Con necticut. It is under the charge of Colonel Frank C. Loveland, who has brought it to such a state of perfection that when he retires from office there will be none of the mixed-up condition of affairs that characterized the office in the past. Mr. Loveland is as stated by thirty clerks and during the quarterly pay ment days an extra force of twenty men is employed At present there are 50,000 names on the pension-lisof this district and $10,000,000 a year is paid out When a pensioner comes for his check he first shows his certificate. Then he signs his name to a voucher and the disbursing clerk writes out a check for him In most cases the pensioner is a garrulous individual who, after receiving his check, begins to give the clerk some personal recollection of the war. This tends to make the hard-working clerk irascible and then begins a commotion that makes pay-day at the pension office one continual hubbub. An interesting feature of the pension office in this city is the mission that is conducted in connection with it. At the suggestion of Colonel Loveland, the mission wa turted in order to afford the veterans a place for spiritual and bodily refreshment while waiting for spiritual and bothly refreshment while waiting for their pensions. Free coffee, sandwiches and a little Moody and sankey talk are given to them. The mis-sion is supported by private subscriptions. Those interested in it are Major-General O. O. Howard, General A. S. Webb, General F. T. Licke, Colonel F. C. Loveland, Colonel H. H. Hadley, Major-General Wager Swayne, Killaen Van Rensselaer, W. F. Wardwell and J. S. Huyler.

combination that threatens to assume the form of a trust to have the words "railroad combine" mentioned without exciting scorn. But a clever play on the word "combine" was made vesterday by a man who had just returned from an excursion ove the Philadelphia and Reading system. "I know some-thing about the Reading 'combine,' " he said, "but it 'combine' of some of the most delightful phases of railroad travelling. Judge Ingraham, of the Supreme Court, has decided favor of the defendants in the suit brought by Solomon Gallinger against the Iowa Central Rallway thers. In 1887 the Central Iowa Raffway Company defaulted in the payment of interest on its bonded in the creditors. Russell Sage, Giles E. Tainfor, Simor Borg, Charles C. Allen, James Thomson and Horac I. Morse were appointed a committee of reorganiza The Iowa Central Railway Company was formed and the stockholders of the old company had the right to transfer their stock on payment of $15 a share. The final notice of reorganization was sent out in May, 1880, and the last instalment on the stock be ame due several months later. In December, 1801, Gallinger bought of I. F. Mead & Co. 200 shares o tack of the old company on which only the first instalment of $2 had been paid. In January, 1892, Gallinger offered the remainder of the assessment to the Iowa Central Lailway Company, but the time limit had expired, and the company refused to re-eive the stock of the old company and Issue to callinger the stock of the new. Judge Ingraham sustains the position of the railway company.

THE FIRE RECORD.

FIVE FAMILIES BURNED OUT IN HOBOKEN Five families were made homeless yesterday after-flames broke out about 2 o'clock, and spread to the adjoining building. The fire was caused by an overheated stove. Kumpel & Leonard's blacksmith shop is at No. 324 and in the rear are living apartments. It was in the dining-room of this rear building that the fire started. The house was completely gutted and the stables of Hugo Berger and C. Keisnetter a No. 326, and the three-story frame dwelling owned y Mrs. Brock, at No. 328, caught fire. The ground floor of No. 328 was used as a grocery by John Dinneen, and the upper floors were occupied by the families of John Dunn and the Misses Garnett. ae time it seemed as if the whole block would go, but by hard work on the part of the firemen the flames were conned to these buildings. The tenants tost most of their property. The loss is estimated at $10,000 and is partially covered by insurance.

DAMAGE TO A NEWARK LEATHER FACTORY. The fancy leather factory of F. A. Schaffer, No. 57 Bergen-st., Newark, was partly destroyed by fire at an early hour yesterday. The fire originated in the room in the rear, and the high wind soon swept the flames through the main building. There was a large amount of stock on hand, which was destroyed. The loss on building and stock is about $50,000, which is partly covered by insurance.

A COSTLY FIRE AT FAIRPORT, N. Y. Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 4.-Fire broke out in the De Land Chemical Works, at Fairport, shortly before 8 o'clock this morning, and at 12 o'clock the plant had been destroyed, entalling a loss of $200,000 surance unknown. The electric light plant which suppiled the village with light, as well as power for the De Land Works, was also destroyed. The chemical works covered three acres of ground and gave employ-ment to about 150 persons. The cause of the fire is not known.

WESTERN MILLS DESTROYED BY FLAMES. Minneapolis, Feb. 4.-The rolling mills of the Harris Forge Milling Company, at Irondale, were destroyed by fire last night. Loss, $125,000; insurance, $90,000. The company employed 250 men.

Sloux City, Iowa, Feb. 4.-The Ponka Mill and ele vator, located at Ponca, Neb., ten miles from this city, burned to the ground yesterday morning. Fifteen carloads of flour and 20,000 bushels of wheat were con-sumed. Loss about $75,000. Fully covered by in-surance.
